LEGION TO DEMAND THE BONUS

MacNider Wires President That Obligation Is Just

OPPOSES ALL DELAY

Congress Studies Possibility of Passing Appropriations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Republican members of the house ways and means committee have decided to go ahead with the soldier bonus legislation abandoning the suggestion that the bill be delayed until later in the session, Chairman Fordney announced after a meeting today.

It was announced that committee members have received assurances from those in charge of appropriations that a large sum will be saved by cutting down army any navy appropriations and that this can be counted as one source of revenue.

Fordney said that the republican sub-committee on means of paying the bonus will resume meetings tomorrow taking up the sales tax as a possible means of providing the additional revenue.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Action on the soldiers' bonus bill may be delayed until house leaders learn definitely how much can be pared from army and navy appropriations.

If the house will support drastic cuts proposed by some leaders, a good start can be made towards the first payment of the bonus, leaders said.

The American Legion, speaking through its national commander, Hanford MacNider, today made it plain in a telegram to President Harding that it will strongly oppose any delay in granting the bonus.

The service men, MacNider wired the President, "do not understand first commitment and then retraction."

"Had capital and labor been drafted when men's lives were drafted, the present aggravated situation would not exist," he said. "When it was a question of reimbursing manufacturers of war contracts never fulfilled, requiring some three billion dollars, no such hue and cry was raised.

"It was an obligation and it was paid. Here is an obligation no less just than that of the manufacturers, railroads and shipping interests. Certainly their services were not so much more patriotic than that of the men who offered their lives."

Meanwhile proponents of the sales tax plan advocated by President Harding as the only alternative to dropping the bonus for the present, continued hopeful that both house and senate would be won over to it. The senate agricultural bloc planned an informal gathering some time this week to discuss the bonus bill, and to decide whether to get back of a revival of the excess profits and high surtaxes as a means of providing the revenue.

Republicans of the house ways and means committee resumed their conferences on bonus legislation today. Indications were that nothing would occur but more talk.

A definite test as to whether a sales tax to pay the bonus can pass the house probably will come in a republican caucus tonight.

DISPATCHERS WIN OVERTIME FIGHT

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Train dispatchers were allowed overtime pay after the ninth hour of work by a decision of the United States railroad labor board today.

Eight hours remains the regular working day, the board ruled, but the regular rate of pay will be in force until nine hours have been worked. The board on March 6 will hear applications of carriers for reduced wages and demands of railroad unions for pay increases.

All Useful Mentality Has Problems That Call for Solution

All alive and useful mentality has problems and is grateful for them and the chance to solve them. This is the statement of James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" tonight. Mr. Foley states that there are clubs meeting in every part of the world interested in the solution of problems of politics and sociology, economics and industry; that the manufacturer at his desk, the professor at his class, the housewife in her kitchen, the statesman in his cabinet, all are busy with problems. In his article Mr. Foley refers to the recently adjourned disarmament conference at Washington as the greatest in the world.

Henry James in his "Comment on the Day's News" on the editorial page speaks of the cost upon the taxpayer through the addition of three congressmen for California. Mr. James believes that congress is already an unwieldy body and that further additions to its personnel are both costly and unnecessary.

Able editorials, wise sayings, excerpts from eastern newspapers, features by Della Stewart and John Pilgrim, all go towards making an editorial page full of interest and educational value.

ART CRAFTERS TO GIVE THE TUESDAY CLUB PROGRAM

Members of Section Are Called on for Tomorrow's Entertainment

Members of the Arts and Crafts section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, who have been learning to make artificial flowers, lamp shades, and a variety of other pretty things, were booked for the club program Tuesday afternoon of the present week.

Mrs. Ralph Meeker, the curator, realizing that the work of the section is still in the infant stage, believed that a much more profitable program could be presented by the art department of Glendale high school which is doing in a larger, more efficient way, the things that the ladies of her section have been attempting in a small way, and so she has arranged for Miss Mary B. Abbott, head of the department. Miss C. Jeannette Abel and Miss Esther Crandall to give the talks and exhibits of the work in that department of the high school which is so little known to many of the new-comers in our city.

This week the Arts and Crafts section will have its regular meeting from 10 to 2 p. m. in the library building on Harvard when a lesson in the making of nut baskets for luncheons and dinners will be given by the curator. Members are asked to come provided with crepe paper, a tube of library paste, spool of green wrapped flower wire, and the little paper nut baskets that are the foundation for the work.

NEW PARTY IS FORMING FOR 1924

Organized Labor and Farmers Bloc Plan Union of Forces

WOULD FORM TICKET

Brotherhood of Machinists Executive First to Announce Movement

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Farmers and trade unionists were called upon to take united political action by William Johnston, president of the Brotherhood of Machinists, in sounding the keynote of the farm-labor political conference here today.

"More genuine farmers and workers must be placed in legislative positions," Johnston declared.

He bitterly attacked the present administration.

"It is a notorious fact," Johnston declared, "that not one piece of remedial helpful legislation looking forward to generol reconstruction tended to benefit the whole people has been introduced by any member of congress known to be in active co-operation with the chief executive."

President Harding, Johnston said, has not sent to congress a single suggestion that can be construed as being physically or spiritually beneficial to the people of the United States since taking office."

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Representatives of organized labor and farmers laid plans here today to gain political control of the United States.

Coalition of the various groups of labor will be effected around the United Farmers' National bloc, formed here Saturday, it was stated on good authority.

Leaders predicted that an entire national ticket of the contemplated party would be in the field by 1924. Until that time, candidates of other parties, if satisfactory, will be given the support of the new party. In case all other candidates are unsatisfactory, the party will put their choice in the field.

Labor, according to William Johnston, president of the Brotherhood of Machinists, who called today's meeting, will not find it difficult to co-operate with the United Farmers' National bloc.

"We expect to build up the senate farm bloc and make a real American bloc," he said.

The meeting here is unique as it is the first time that any real attempt has been made to get the various groups of labor and farmers together. Sessions will be executive and will continue for three days.

Besides the sixteen standard railway unions, representatives of the socialist party, the United Mine Workers, American Federation of Labor, American Society of Equity, Committee of Forty-eight, Farmer-Labor party, Non-Partisan league, Single Taxers and many other groups will attend.

President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers will attend tomorrow and will hold conference with officials of the railway unions relative to the threatened coal strike. The rail unions will probably promise him moral support in the strike and pass resolutions to that effect, according to Johnston.

"Labor has no idea of forming a separate third party," Johnston told the United Press. "I am fully acquainted with the new United Farmers' National bloc and am sure that we will have no difficulty in co-operating with it.

"After free discussion, I believe all the groups will reach the same conclusion. We find fault with existing conditions, but we are not blameless. Our fault is due to division which has existed in our various forces."

GENSET FINDS HOOCH COSTLY

Getting "soused" in Glendale is costly. Walter Genset of 215 East Palmer avenue was arrested at 111 South Brand boulevard yesterday, the charge against him being "intoxication and disorderly conduct." After getting a few drinks under his belt, Genset thought, as many have before him, that he was the boss of the corner, but it did not take the Glendale police boys long to show him that he was not exactly correct on that point. He was released on $15 bail.

PAVING IS A SOURCE OF BIG REVENUE TO CITY FROM CONTRACTS

City Manager Reveals City Is Now in Contracting Business on Huge Scale Due to Growth of City and Moves of Citizens for Improvement

SAVE ALL SURPLUS PROFIT IS NOW SLOGAN

Lists of Streets Improved and Whose Residents Have Voted for the Betterments, Shows Municipal Activity Throughout Community

The city of Glendale has gone in the street improvement business with a vengeance, the idea being to save the residents of the city the profits generally absorbed by the roadway contractors. It has been rightfully declared that Glendale is the fastest growing city in the world. N oone disputes this fact. Now the claim can be made that there is at this time more street work under way and ordered in Glendale than in any city of its size in the world. After a review of the following list of streets on which street work has been or is being done or is to be done, no one would think of taking exception to this statement.

The following communication was issued from the office of City Manager William Reeves this morning:

"At the present time Glendale has a camgain on for street improvements such as has never been known since she became a city. The attached list shows a total of 96 pieces of street work ordered by the council, under way or actually completed since July 1 last. Under the new policy, it is not necessary to obtain a majority petition for the opening or improvement of a street before the same may be done; although this is desirable. If, however, at any time the council finds that a certain piece of street work is imperatively needed, they order it begun without awaiting the petition.

"The street department is now well equipped to handle any ordinary job of street paving, particularly the reconstruction of old streets. Accordingly at any time an extensive campaign of resurfacing our streets could be undertaken if only the necessary funds were available for the purpose. A call for a bond issue for the necessary revolving fund is contemplated in the near future. It is probable that the street department will undertake the construction of the new swimming pool in the Patterson avenue park, thus saving the contractor's profit to the people of Glendale."

Pay Our Obligations

The temper of the people of the United States, and of the service men seems hardly to come within the sensing ability of congress these days.

Seventeen states impatient of congressional delay, shifting and evasion, have granted bonuses to their soldier citizens. Every responsible newspaper has warned congress to pass the bonus, as a just measure, not as a measure of intimidation.

Yet, news dispatches today indicate that congress has set itself complacently for another effort to talk the measure to death.

Aside from the justice of the measure the danger to the United States in refusing adjustment to ex-service men is very, very serious. More particularly so since many of them are penniless, out of work, embittered beyond their years by the neglect of their government.

In January they saw the allies given twenty-five years in which to pay $15,000,000 back to the United States. They have seen an arrogant farmers' bloc hold up legislation and attack their bonus, in order to secure $100,000,000 for the members of the farmers' alliance.

They have seen millions of dollars worth of farm produce shipped abroad for the relief of Europe, and incidentally for the relief of farmers whose overproduction had brought ruin upon them.

These soldiers who now, hiding their little bright gilt emblems, the bright badge of courage, are panhandling in the streets, know that all this wealth would have been lost but for them.

They know the people are ready right now to contribute out of their own savings all the money needed to finance a bonus.

They cannot understand, the people do not understand, why congress does not understand.

If this congress and this president are so lost in the contemplation of their power that they do not hear the voice of the nation, certainly an alarming condition exists at Washington that must be remedied if we are to have peace and harmony of purpose here.

TWILIGHT CONCERT IS A TREAT

Fine Music Beautifully Interpreted and Regally Presented

DELIGHT AUDIENCE

Benefit for Organ Fund of Holy Family Church Scores Hit

Fine music, beautifully interpreted, and sumptuously presented in a regal combination of pipe organ, grand piano, violin and the human voice, was the twilight subscription recital at the Glendale theatre Sunday afternoon, the second of the series of concerts arranged by Harry Girard to raise the money for the $7500 organ of the Holy Family Catholic church.

The two Greig numbers "Morning" and "Anitra's Dance," a piano and organ duet with Mr. Girard at the piano and Paul Carson at the organ were a satisfying beginning. Then came the vocal duets by Mr. and Mrs. Girard, "Neath the Stars" (Thomas), "Smiles and Tears" (Mozart), and "Land of Long Ago" (Lilian Ray), all very beautifully sung and warmly applauded by the big audience.

John Marquardt, Glendale's imperial violinist then played in his best manner "Adagio" from Concerto, and Scherzo Fantastique (Bazzini), with Mr. Girard at the piano.

Henry Le Bonte sang in solo, "Aria from Faust" (Gounod) and Kipling's "Mandelay" (Oley Speaks).

Vocal solos by Mrs. Girard, "Love Song" (Hollman) and "Lullaby" (Hapravnik) with the splendid accompaniment of piano, organ and violin, were the next numbers to delight the audience which demanded and received an encore.

By way of variety, Frank Egan of the Egan School of Dramatic Art, read "Sandalphon" (Longfellow) and "That Old Fashioned Song" (Riley) with a wonderful piano accompaniment by Harry Girard.

By this time the audience was eager to hear Mr. Girard and Mr. Le Bonte in duet and their appearance together upon the platform was greeted with applause which was renewed and prolonged at the conclusion of "El Forza del Destino."

The climax of the program was reached, however, in the concluding number when Mr. and Mrs. Henri Le Bonte and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard with Mr. Carson at the organ sang magnificently the quartette from Rigoletto (Verdi).

The first concert was greatly enjoyed but this second one left nothing to be desired except more of the same sort.

A large audience gathered to enjoy it, and Mrs. Girard was able to announce that the objective sought has been reached and the organ fund is now assured.

ZONING ORDINANCE PROVES POPULAR

City District Seek Restrictions as Residential Localities

The zoning ordinance is proving popular. At the last meeting of the city council several localities petitioned for ordinance amendments which would set them aside as strictly residential districts. One which covered Kenwood north of Wilson and another Geneva north of Doran, asked for high class residential zoning. A petition from Lexington drive and Milford west of Columbus asked for limited residential restrictions which would permit two houses on one lot but prohibit apartment houses and bungalow courts.

The site of the Davis greenhouses was left out of the industrial zone when the ordinance was drawn but now they desire to increase their plant in the direction of San Fernando road and are petitioning to have it included in the San Fernando Industrial district. Two years ago they began with buildings on the line of the P. E tracts on Fourth street and now they want to add to the two big greenhouses in operation and extend the line to the San Fernando. They specialize on cucumbers and have a similar plant in Aurora, Ill.

If no serious protests are made by other residents affected the council will probably grant the petitions and have the ordinance amended.

TWO INJURED IN SUNDAY AUTO CRASH

Miss Mary McKay and J. L. Johnson Both of Los Angeles, in Hospital

WHEELS BUCKLE

Accident at Kenneth Road and Grand View Avenue Caused by Sand

As a result of an accident at the intersection of Kenneth road and Grand View avenue yesterday afternoon, Miss Mary McKay of the Dallas apartments, Los Angeles, and J. T. Johnson, a salesman for the Crescent creamery of Los Angeles, are now in the Glendale sanitarium and hospital, suffering from several cuts and bruises. Miss McKay, in addition to several smaller abrasions, suffered a cut about three inches long over her right eye, which, if it had been half an inch lower, might have resulted in the loss of that eye.

The most serious injury sustained by Mr. Johnson was a fractured foot, which will confine him to his bed for several weeks.

It is claimed that a sand wash at the point where the accident occurred was the direct cause of the trouble. The couple was driving west on Kenneth road in a roadster. At the place where the accident occurred there is a small ravine, at the bottom of which sand has been washed by the recent rains. When the machine struck this sand the front wheels buckled and the car turned over. The cries of the driver brought assistance to the scene. When help arrived the victims were pinned beneath the car, which was resting with wheels in the air. It was lifted so that the injured ones might be assisted from beneath it. The car was then righted and pushed to the side of the road, to await the auto doctor.

In the meantime the injured parties were placed in a passing machine and hurried to the Glendale sanitarium, where it was decided that immediate operations were necessary. Within five minutes after reaching the hospital the patients were on the operating tables.

At the latest reports this morning both patients were resting quietly. It was said that Miss McKay would probably be confined to the institution for several days, and that Mr. Johnson could be removed to his home as soon as his cuts and bruises were sufficiently healed, which would be within a week.

LOCAL ORCHARDS ONLY SLIGHTLY FROST BITTEN

Orchardist Believes Only Five Per Cent Are Affected

J. P. Lukens, who has been suffering from a prolonged attack of influenza, is now recuperating and Mrs. Lukens is much encouraged about him.

She says they are waiting anxiously to determine the extent of the damage to their lemon orchard at Verdugo and Broadway. The orange orchard on the high school site is almost untouched so far as any betraying evidence from the foliage, but the lemons were well singed. If the leaves fall off it will be evidence that the limbs are unhurt. On the contrary, if the leaves persist, it will show that the twigs have been killed by the frost and wholesale pruning will be necessary.

Unusual conditions as regards weather and moisture were responsible in great part for the havoc wrought by frost, Mrs. Lukens says. When the long, two-years' drought was broken by a warm, nine-days' rain, the trees forgot they were dormant, sap began to flow and such growth as ordinarily would not commence until March, began. While in this tender, growing state, with the sap active, the frost came upon them when they were least prepared to resist it.

Glendale orchards are said to have suffered far less than in most of the Southern California districts, particularly on the upper levels. R. W. Meeker estimates that his loss will not exceed 5 per cent, and that in Valencias, which will probably recover before marketing time next summer.

BURBANK NEWS

REVIVAL PLANNED AT BURBANK BY METHODISTS

BURBANK, Feb. 20.—Thought and activities of the Methodist church are centered about the coming evangelistic meeting that will begin the 26th of this month and close March 19. Dr. Monkmon of Iowa, but at present in Los Angeles, is the evangelist engaged for the series of meetings. The Conner Trio, father, mother and daughter, will provide excellent entertainment in music, readings, trombone solos and various other pleasing features, but all of them used for spirituality.

The exterior of the beautiful new church is now completed with the exception of the main entrance steps, which have not been made on account of the rain and cold weather. Much of the interior finishing, including plastering, remains to be done, but little more will now be accomplished until after the close of the evangelistic meeting. The grounds are being leveled preparatory for beautification and the money has been subscribed for the equipment with tennis and croquet courts the athletic portion of the grounds.

VALLEY BOULEVARD IMPROVEMENT IS PROGRESSING

BURBANK, Feb. 20.—Work on San Fernando boulevard in the matter of laying sidewalks and making curbing and gutter, is getting under good headway, but considerable preliminary work has had to be done on account of the many trees which have had to be removed. Nearly 50, and many of them large, have been laid low, and as they have been removed from below the surface, considerable labor has been involved in preparing the line for the walks. The improvement extends from Verdugo avenue to the city limits and it is said that Mr. Moreland will continue the work past his plant on that side of the street, and it is understood that the property owners on the other side will extend the improvement across their frontage.

The city has several men at work trimming trees and consequently adding much to the appearance of the streets. The work has been finished on Olive and nearly so on Verdugo, and the next one will be Tujunga avenue, but it is expected to go over the entire city with this work.

C. class meets at the parsonage February 23 to make baby clothes to be distributed by the deaconesses of Los Angeles.

BURBANK SCHOOL INSTITUTES BOX FOR KNOCKS

The high school has a "Knock Box" and it was opened Friday morning and the knocks were read by Professor Moore to the assembled teachers and students. As it was not known who wrote the complaints, or at least it was not supposed that the writer's identity would be known, many made free to express themselves who would not have otherwise breathed the suggestion in the darkest corner of the cellar. Naturally, Principal Moore came in for the greatest number of suggestions and complaints, some of which brought the house down, but all of which he took in fine humor. He was called to account for sarcasm; not talking loudly enough, for spending all his time writing letters (applause) and a few other trivial matters. Some one suggested that the drinking fountain be fixed. After reading this "knock" Professor Moore said the school board had paid a plumbing firm $160 for work which was supposed to include repairing of the fountain and that a plumber would come to the building, fool with the fountain a little, make it no better; come again and still no desirable results.

Some one else suggested that when the new high school was built that it be not spread out all over the country and that patios be left for the Mexicans. Replying to this, Mr. Moore said he heartily approved it, and was sorry he arrived too late last summer to have an opportunity to express himself in regard to the architecture of the new building.

It was suggested that the thieving around the school be stopped and another knock was to the effect there was no place to keep wheels where they might be safe. This was a sad condition acknowledged by Mr. Moore and much regretted. Some one wanted a tennis court and the principal replied that matter was going to receive immediate attention. Another one complained that some boys did not know how to control their tongue in the presence of girls. Mr. Moore expressed deep regret over this and offered apologies to the girls. He stated in this connection that there were several "knocks" which he could not read because of the profane language used in expressing them.

Following the opening of the "knock box" and the discussion of its contents, Principal Moore introduced Rev. Allen of the Methodist church. As he arose to address the room, the students set up a cheer for "Allen!" He spoke to the young folks on the subject of personality and urged them to develop a character of strength and winsomeness and one which would withstand the reverses of life. He urged them to not be mere machines but to think for themselves and he also urged that while vocational training was quite all right and necessary, a cultural education was also essential to the development of the best character.

BURBANK REBEKAH LODGE IS OPENED

Burbank now has a splendid Rebekah lodge, for last Thursday afternoon the state president of Rebekahs and other state officials and deputies were here and instituted a lodge with a charter membership of 11, but this formal proceedure was but the beginning of further delightful events, for in the evening there were initiated 43 candidates, making a membership of 54, which is a fine beginning and highly satisfactory to all those who have been giving their time and efforts to the end of instituting a Rebekah lodge in Burbank.

All the events of the program were held in the Women's club rooms which were taxed to accommodate the large number of visitors and local people. The team from Van Nuys put on the initiatory work in the evening and the installing team which inducted the officers-elect into their positions was from Lancaster. Both teams did their work beautifully and with great credit to themselves and provided much entertainment to those who saw the work.

At 6 o'clock the women of the Presbyterian church served dinner in the church to the visiting Rebekahs and some of the home members. At the conclusion of the initiation refreshments were served in the hall where the work was being done.

Besides the state officers and the drill teams there were present many guests from Los Angeles, Lancaster and Van Nuys and other neighboring cities; also from the jurisdictions of Missouri and South Dakota and a representative was present from Seattle.

The newly installed officers are Mrs. Eva DeMoss; noble grand; Mrs. Effie Lawrence, vice noble grand; Mrs. Nettie Roberson, secretary; Mrs. Nellie Handle, treasurer; Mrs. Nellie Peck, chaplain; Mrs. Mary Denhart, right supporter for noble grand; Mrs. Eva Schultz, left supporter for noble grand; Mrs. Hazel Nelson, rignt supporter for vice noble grand; Mrs. Martha Conklin, left supporter for vice noble grand; Mrs. Roland Nelson, warden; Mrs. Bertha Hursh, conductor; Mrs. Mary Hannaman, inside guardian; Mrs. Franklin, outside guardian.

The Rebekahs and the Odd Fellows expect to be in their new hall which is the second story of the annex to the First National bank, the first of March. Here they will have comfortable and attractive quarters for both the business and social phases of their lodge work.

RED TRIANGLE CLUB STARTED AT BURBANK

The Red Triangle Y. M. C. A club, is a new organization in the Presbyterian church and is composed of about 18 boys and, the membership steadily increasing, with Judson Blanchard as president. The work of the club is built around the regular Y. M. C. A. study course and the work of the Sunday school and church. Every member must be a member of some Sunday school although not necessarily the Presbyterian Sunday school.

The club meets every Thursday evening in the basement of the church and there is first a devotional and study period and later practice shooting is enjoyed. The equipment for the junior Winchester Rifle Corps was loaned by Story & Son. It is expected that later in the season baseball teams will be formed and in mid-summer the boys will go with Rev. Stephenson to Pine Flats in the San Bernardino mountains, the camp maintained by the Los Angeles county non-equipment Y. M. C. A.

In speaking of the rifle practice and the summer camping, Rev. Stephenson said the idea was not merely to provide wholesome amusement for the boys although that was good in itself, but the spiritual side of life was emphasized and developed and he stated that at the camp last summer a number of boys were converted.

COUNCIL REJECTS SUBDIVISION PLAN

The map for the proposed Bates subdivision which concerns property lying between Providencia and Cedar avenues and above Seventh street, has been rejected by the city board of trustees which took action at the last meeting.

This is a matter which has caused considerable worry to residents in that section and has aroused considerable discussion. Among others to appear before the board in protest to the proposed subdivision was Mr. Moreland who said that there were many residents who had bought property and built nice houses for life-long homes, in that neighborhood, and that such a subdivision as was proposed would injure their property and depreciate the value of it very materially, and a protest signed by Mr. Moreland and 23 others was presented to the board. It was moved by Trustee Rouscup and seconded by Trustee Myers that the map be rejected and the motion carried.

A petition signed by A. S. D. Fulton and four others for the grading of Providencia avenue was offered to the board, and Mr. Andrews spoke on the same matter urging that the street be graded. The matter was referred to the street committee which decided to meet with Mr. Andrews and property owners on February 16.

A motion was carried to accept the deed from Mr. and Mrs. Reid after the city engineer had reported favorably upon the property.

Mr. Goff was before the board regarding damage done by water running across his property and he was advised that the contractor for the Eleventh street work was liable for the damages.

Messrs. Davisson, Watson and Jackman requested that Elmwood avenue be repaired and made passable.

Concerning the proposed improvement of Tenth street west and Elmwood, the city clerk was instructed to notify the next lowest bidder on said improvement.

Justin Clute asked that Verdugo avenue be graded between Tenth and Eleventh street. Mr. Zwalina spoke to the trustees regarding the intersection of Tenth street and Santa Anita and Providencia avenues and the city engineer said that the contractor would like to have the care of that matter.

Mr. Martin appeared before the board in regard to gathering and disposing of the city rubbish and garbage, but no action was taken in the matter.

It was moved by Myers and seconded by Crawford that special Officer Richardson's salary be made $135, he to furnish his own motorcycle and the city to provide tires, oil and gas. The motion carried.

GREYERSON FUNERAL HELD

The funeral service for Harold Greyerson, who died of tubercular-pneumonia at the age of 26 years, was held Saturday afternoon, February 18.

The deceased had been employed for the past year as superintendent of the Genevieve Jackson dehydrating plant and previously for several years had been with Libby, McNeil & Libby in the local plant and also with the company's interests in Alaska. He was an exceptionally keen minded and intelligent young man with his brilliance particularly pronounced along inventive lines, which had resulted in many devices of great merit. In disposition he was quiet but exceptionally pleasant and obliging and therefore made many friends in Burbank.

The deceased was taken sick on Christmas day and from that time continued to grow worse. His sister, Mrs. G. C. Days of Seattle, arrived to take care of him and removed him to 335 Magnolia avenue where he died. He is survived by his parents and a brother, all of Seattle. His father is at present in Alaska and his mother is ill at her home and could not come to Burbank.

The funeral services were conducted from the chapel in Grand View cemetery with Rev. Thomas Allen of the Methodist church presiding. In honor to their loved companion, the dehydrating plan closed and all attended the services.

EDMONDS TELLS OF GREAT SECRET

Presbyterian Divine Continues Talks on Paul's Epistle

"If the epistle to the Philippians was a letter to you, you would read it all at once," said Rev. W. E. Edmonds Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church, in prelude to the third sermon based on that great epistle. Words from Ch. 4 formed the special subject: "I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content. I know both how to be abased,—and to abound:—I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need. I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

"These verses form the great secret of Paul's success. They show why he had been chosen—he was the man God wanted. If you are looking for success, look out to get in the line of God's will; that's the place to succeed.

"In every device of utility, back of it clear out of sight somewhere has been an idea in some mind. The printed Bible, the morning paper, are due to an idea of printing far back of the linotype that has produced them. How much we are indebted to the thought in a mind.

"Now look in the realm of the spiritual. 'The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him,'—He will show you His program. Our human programs are inadequate, they don't go far enough. Certain secret orders are in the world, holding rituals secret to themselves. Paul belongs to the secret order of believers. He says, 'I have been initiated in the secret for all sorts and conditions of life, I can do all things.' 'Why, Paul, that's impossible!' 'Yes; through Christ which strengtheneth me.'

"Look through this epistle and you will see much made of the incarnation—God made flesh, as one of us. Jesus was a practical man, knowing all of our life. This secret from Him will fit into all of our life, all of our adverse circumstances; He is equal to every emergency.

"The Brooklyn bridge is adjusted for heat and cold; its expansion and contraction are exactly provided for. A watch is adjusted for changes of temperature and position so it will run true under all conditions. Are you adjusted to all the extremes of life? Who ever heard of a believer adjusted to God's will who went all to pieces?"

JESUS AND BLIND IS RILEY'S TEXT

Dr. Riley of the New Thought Center prefaced his discoures yesterday by reading a few interesting selections from the ancient Chinese Bible. He said in part:

When Laou-tsze, the ancient Chinese philosopher and founder of Taouism, also the first great awakener and teacher of divine thought in China was asked, "From what source do you receive your divine knowledge?" he answered, "It is not I who speaks; I am only a channel through which a great teacher or master comes with a message to give to the people. When a message from the divine source Taou (God) is to be given to the world, a living master is found to deliver it."

Taou-tsze also said, "He who is of spiritual mind emits a holy light." This corresponds to that spoken of by St. Paul.

To emit this light, we must be humble as little children. It is essential to cast off the old man Adam and grow in spirituality, that our inner self should be unfolded, that our blind eyes should see the light—for only thus is it possible to understand the teachings of Christ."

Before enlarging upon his theme the speaker advised his hearers to read St. Mark 16:15-18, also to study the ninth chapter of St. John.

BURBANK NOTES

Special evangelistic meetings are being held in the Gospel Hall on Verdugo avenue. Services are conducted at 3 and 7:30 o'clock on Sundays and at 7:30 o'clock on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

W. A. Clark, post commander of American Legion, is ill at his home at the Santa Rosa.

Mrs. Greenman of Angeleno avenue is recovering rather slowly from her attack of sickness. Mr. Greenman also has not been well.

C. E. Barras of the Parisian has been confined to his room with the prevailing "flu."

William Howell of Tujunga avenue is another victim of the grippe.

W. F. Lake has gone north for two months to attend to business interests.

A wide walk extending to the gutter is being laid along the west side of the First National bank. This is a decided improvement to the appearance of this corner. The annex to the bank is nearing completion and will soon be ready for occupancy. The building adjoining this to be occupied by the Harry Watson company, has been started.

Mrs. C. M. Knox and Mrs. A. A. Crawford are in charge of a party which was given last Friday evening to the orchestra of the Presbyterian church. Making and pulling taffy was one of the diversions. Members of the orchestra and parents and friends were present. The orchestra has recently been reorganized with Vern Isom as director.

BATTLE FOR SEAT OF SEN. KENYON

Rough and Tumble Politics Mix in Contest for Toga

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20. — The contest for the republican senatorial nomination in Iowa today became a three-cornered scrap for the seat which Senator Kenyon will relinquish late this week, when Representative Burton Sweet, third Iowa district, formally announced his candidacy.

Political extremes will "mix it" in a rough and tumble battle for the senate seat now occupied by Senator Kenyon, Iowa. The campaign for Kenyon's place will get under way this week.

Kenyon will leave the senate Friday. Charles A. Rawson, his successor, will serve only until after the November election. Rawson will not be a candidate for the republican nomination at the June primary. Charles E. Pickett and Smith Brookhart will be the chief contestants for the G. O. P. nomination.

Pickett, a former member of congress, was the only republic candidate for congress from Iowa to be defeated in the year he made his exit.

Conservatives expect President Harding's influence to help Pickett but Harding has been warned to keep out of Iowa this year.

YUMA CONTRACTOR FOUND DEAD

SOMERTON, Ariz., Feb. 20.—The dead body of Charles E. Durham, prominent contractor, was found in an empty building here late yesterday by boys at play. A bullet hole was in the mouth. It is believed he committed suicide. The county attorney and sheriff's office will begin an investigation following the inquest today.

DANIED CAMPBELL IS ILL.

Daniel Campbell, the banker, is confined to his bed by a severe cold. It may have its compensations as he was recently drafted for jury service.

CITY PRINTING

ORDINANCE NO. 542

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE:

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to establish, maintain, conduct or carry on any institution, day nursery, boarding house, home or other place for the reception or care of children, in which one child or more than one child under the age of fifteen (15) years shall be so kept or received, within the City of Glendale without first having obtained a permit in writing from the City Council of said City so to do, as hereinafter provided.

SECTION 2. Any person, firm or corporation desiring such permit shall apply in writing to the said Council of the City of Glendale, and shall truly state in said application the location or proposed location of the institution, day nursery, home or boarding house, the purpose for which it is to be conducted or maintained, the accommodations for the inmates thereof, the nature and kind of care to be given or proposed to be given therein, and the name and address of the person, firm or corporation that shall own such institution, day nursery, home or boarding house, and also the name and address of the person who shall actually conduct and manage such institution, day nursery, home or boarding house.

It shall be the duty of the City Council, upon the receipt of such application, to make or cause to be made strict inquiry into the facts set out in such application, and if, upon such inquiry, said Council shall find such institution, day nursery, home or boarding house is, or is intended to be, conducted so as to comply with all the laws, ordinances, rules and regulations which shall then be in force in said City concerning the location, management and control of such institutions, day nurseries, homes or boarding houses, and that the same shall not be a menace or probable menace to the public peace, health, comfort and welfare, then said City Council shall grant a permit to conduct such institution, day nursery, home or boarding house, and shall issue or cause to be issued a permit authorizing such applicant to open, conduct, manage or maintain such institution, day nursery, home or boarding house at such place in the manner and for the purpose in such application set forth, provided, however, that such permit shall not be issued unless it shall appear to said Council that such institution, day nursery, home or boarding house or other place, established, maintained, or constructed for the reception and care of children, conforms in arrangement, sanitation and equipment to the provisions of all laws and of all ordinances of the City of Glendale.

SECTION 3. AGED SWISS GROOM IS ACCEPTED BY M'CORMICKS

Baby Heiress to Have a Fifty-seven Year Old Husband

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.— The baby granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, today won the right to marry to man she loved—a Swiss groom over thrice her age.

Mathilde McCormick, 16, persuaded her father, Harold F. McCormick, head of the International Harvester company that her happiness depended on her marriage to Max Oser, Zurich, Switzerland. McCormick then made the announcement of the engagement.

Only one string is attached to the consent of McCormick—Max Oser must quit his fatherland and come to America to live, friends of the family stated.

This provision, it was said, was a concession to the world's richest man, Rockefeller, the patriarch of the family who has prided himself publicly that fortune-seeking men of Europe never married into his family.

Mathilde, it was believed, will leave for Zurich to meet the horseman-fiance in May.

From Emil L. Burgy, cousin of Oser, who is an interior decorator here, comes the story of the man who is about to marry into America's wealthiest family.

Burgy stated that Oser is 57, not 47 as has been reported.

"He is my age," said the cousin. "I know his intimately."

Burgy said the father of his cousin, Max, was a German nobleman, named Count Von Der Muehl. "Max took the name of his stepfather who cleaned up $1,500,000 in the cotton business in America after the Civil war," said Burgy. "Max isn't penniless. He has an income of at least $10,000 a year."

Burgy said his family was once socially prominent. "Our plight now," he stated, "has come because my predecessors married below their social standing."

Burgy said the family fortunes began to slip when his grandfather married the head waitress of a famous hotel he owned.

The consent to the marriage was viewed today as in keeping with the policy of the family to allow the children free rein in matter of marriage.

Herr Oser, besides giving lessons in riding, maintains a livery.

"I am terribly lonesome and will return as soon as possible," was Mathilde's only comment today.

IRISH READY TO APPROVE TREATY

Three Thousand Sinn Feiners to Vote for Pact, It Is Said

DUBLIN, Feb. 20.—Three thousand Sinn Feiners in convention here tomorrow will approve the Irish free state treaty by a vote of more than two to one, it was predicted today.

De Valeraites said the former president probably will head a minority party at the general election following the convention.

Tomorrow's convention is almost plebiscite as the delegates representing all parts of Ireland were elected on the single issue of approval of the treaty and the free state.

HARDING REGULARS ATTACK WISCONSIN SENATOR

Frankly Out to Defeat LaFollette It Is Claimed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20. — "Fighting Bob" LaFollette's political career has been marked from the beginning by mass attacks upon him. Time and time again the word has gone forth that LaFollette was "through," that his enemies at last had him down and almost out, and that he would retire to private life.

But La Follette has emerged time and again from the heap with his bushy gray pompadour hardly ruffled, while his enemies have retired in bad order to patch up their hurts and form for a new assault.

This year the greatest assault upon LaFollette which has yet been called on to face is being prepared. The whole power and influence of the Harding administration are behind it. Its slogan and battlecry is covered by two words—"Beat LaFollette." Its generalissimo in the field is Senator Irvine Lenroot, who with LaFollette represents Wisconsin in the senate.

LaFollette will seek renomination this summer in the Republican senatorial primary. Thus far no one with sufficient hardihood to oppose him has been found. But under direction of the Lenroot forces a committee of forty-four "sane progressives" has been selected to find someone in the state who can successfully keep the Republican nomination from LaFollette. The fight against him is based on his radical leanings and on his utter disregard of his party. The whole idea is to drive LaFollette out of public life, because he has refused to be a cog in the Republican machine.

Insurgency like his, when exercised in so high a place as the United States senate is dangerous, Republican leaders feel. They are spreading in Wisconsin the doctrine that LaFollette gives the state a bad name; that people think the whole state is composed of "reds" and bolshevists.

If LaFollette would work with his teammates in the Republican lineup in the senate things would not be so bad. But the party feels he is a liability; he is called a Republican, and he has a vote, but he uses it oftener against his party than for it. The Republicans in the senate do not need LaFollette's vote right now, but they do not forget the time when their control of the senate hung on the slender thread of one vote. Furthermore, LaFollette's example is felt to have a demoralizing effect, stirring to unseemly independence of party rule certain other senators. If LaFollette can be disciplined and made an example, it will be easier to control other insurgents, the G. O. P. chiefs feel.

With full appreciation of LaFollette's power in Wisconsin, administration leaders set out months ago to "nibble away" his support. They ignored him in dispensing federal patronage—the "pie" that makes the political game worth while. Even minor postoffices were withheld from LaFollette men, and given to Lenroot partisans. Lenroot was given all the help possible in building up a machine that would be able to take LaFollette's measure in this year's campaign.

JAPAN ART AND TEA COMPANY OPENS HERE

The Japan Art and Tea company of 135 South Brand boulevard will open its doors tomorrow morning with a complete line of teas, coffees, spices, etc., and the finest line of oriental art goods that has ever been seen in Glendale. It would indeed be difficult to conceive of anything along the oriental art line that this concern has not placed in its stock. These goods are of the better class. They are such as will appeal to those wishing something out of the ordinary, and everything is in keeping with what a person would expect to find in a strictly first-class art goods store.

In this store will be found an exceptionally fine collection of Persian and Chinese rugs which, it is believed, is the first assortment of its kind ever shown in Glendale. There will be also unusually fine collections of Satsuma, bronze and cloisonee ware, something that has never been offered for sale in Glendale before.

Tsuruye Kuranaga, proprietor of the Japan Art and Tea company, is a graduate of the Doshi university of Kigoto, Japan. She speaks English fluently and is sure to please those who patronize this establishment.

The tea and coffee department is something of which the proprietor is proud. Before this was arranged, a member of the firm traveled all over the United States during which time he noted the tea departments of the various stores visited, with the hope of finding some ideas that would be improvements over his own system. This system was constructed entirely by the Glendale Milling company, while Harry Moore took charge of the interior decorating of the entire room.

A feature of this establishment will be the window display of artware. The people of Glendale will be shown oriental goods such as have never been seen in Glendale before. The original display will contain a piece of cloisonee ware made by J. Ando of Japan. This particular piece of ware took the grand prize at every national and international exposition at which it was entered.

The opening of this store tomorrow morning will be a brilliant affair. A pleasant surprise is in store for every one who attends, and there will be souvenir paper caps for the children.

CHIROPRACTORS OF LOS ANGELES OPEN HERE

Holland and Rogers Take Office in White Inn

Holland & Rogers, chiropractors, have opened offices in the White Inn building, 102-04 North Glendale avenue. The members of this firm, Dr. B. J. Holland and Dr. C. R. Rogers, are well-known in chiropractic circles of Southern California.

Dr. Holland has been practicing in Los Angeles for the past two years. He has just purchased a home in Verdugo Woodlands, and, in order to be closer to home, he is transferring some of his attention, chiropractically, to Glendale. He will be in Glendale every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, the other three days being at 310-11 Columbia building, Los Angeles.

Dr. Rogers shares the two offices with Dr. Holland. He is in Glendale on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, the other three being spent in the Los Angeles office. In other words, when Dr. Holland is at one office Dr. Rogers is occupying the other. Dr. Rogers is at this time located in Santa Monica, but as soon as possible he intends to purchase a home in Glendale and locate here permanently.

Both Dr. Holland and Dr. Rogers are graduates of the Ratlidge School of Chiropractic in Los Angeles, and both have received the degree of D.C., Ph.C.

The Glendale office of Holland & Rogers is one of the finest chiropractic offices in Glendale and is claimed to be the only ground floor chiropractic office in California. It is finished in gray. The walls are plain, while the ceiling is of lattice work. The reception room has oak furnishings, rugs, and beautiful lighting fixtures. Off the reception room are two dressing rooms which are charmingly arranged and furnished, while a little beyond is the adjusting room, with Prector patented adjustment table, etc. The atmosphere in these offices is enhanced by the beautiful gold, gray, old rose and blue drapes, which blend beautifully into the general interior color scheme.

At a concert devoted to Richard Strauss's works the conductor, after performance of one piece, tapped the desk with his baton and told the orchestra that the next piece would be "Tod und Verklarung."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed one of the violinists, "I've just played that."

The only pure white monkey known to exist was recently brought to London.

Truths in Epigram

There is, however, a limit at which forbearance ceases to be a virtue.—Burke (1729-1797).

When a man assumes a public trust, he should consider himself a public property.—Jefferson (1743-1826).

The measure of a man's life is the well spending of it, and not the length.—Plutarch (46 (?) A.D.-120 (?) A. D).

PROTECTING THE PORT

The public is not getting a fair deal in relation to the harbor at San Pedro. It realizes this fact clearly. It is calling upon the politicians to remember that they have no right to use this great commercial asset for their own purposes. A harbor is for the conduct and accomodation of traffic. This particular harbor is of importance to the whole of southern California. For its development to be hampered while a handful of politicians squabble over it, instead of attending to the business for which they are paid, is little less than an outrage.

Precisely to fix the blame is a little difficult. In theory the mayor of Los Angeles has power to appoint a board of harbor commissioners. The fact is that he has no such power. The Los Angeles city council took it away from him. The men he named, and for whose conduct he would have been held responsible, the council rejected. He was forced to make other appointments in accord with the will of the council, and as these appointments prove unsatisfactory, where does the responsibility belong? The councilmen are not to be observed reaching for their share of it.

Were the present board to retire, or be ousted, again the duty of filling the places would fall to the mayor. There is not the slightest indication that any choice he might make, however wise, would be confirmed.

Something will have to be done to take control of the harbor from the hands of officeholders who have shown neither desire nor ability to control. The harbor is no plaything.

CANNON TO RETIRE

Congressman Joseph Cannon says that he will retire. He has been in public service half a century, has been in the house longer than any other member, and he is eighty-six. Even if despite his burden of years, his powers were not visibly waning, Mr. Cannon would fairly be deemed entitled to a rest.

He has been a notable figure in congress. As speaker he was known as a czar, as Reed had been known before him. Indeed, Reed was the first to win this significant title. Although a czar, Mr. Cannon was as just to all as it was possible for a strong partisan to be. Doubtless his failure to recognize a member from the opposition who sought to address the chair was not invariably accidental. Loud complaints made by democrats did not seem greatly to disturb him.

Once, by some curious fluke, the second congressional district sent Ed. Livernash to congress to rattle in the seat filled before and since by Julius Kahn. Livernash was the representative of San Francisco labor interests. Arriving at Washington he called upon Speaker Cannon to inform him as to chairmanships the new member expected, and to let him understand that in the person of Livernash was concentrated the potency of the entire labor vote of the Pacific coast. Cannon was affable, and Livernash was pleased by the thought of the impression created. But Livernash never got a thing. His sole duty in congress was to answer roll call. There was no device by which he could get recognition, and he was nearly smothered by the fumes of the wrath corked in him.

But this illustrated only one of the Cannon whims. He couldn't be pushed. He resented over-confidence in bush league statesmen. His general policy was constructive, his motives always patriotic, and he couldn't help being just the sort of party man that he was.

POOR JURY SELECTIONS

A commission engaged in investigation of juries in Chicago asserts that in several instances there verdicts of acquittal have been returned in the face of evidence clearly establishing the fact of guilt. From this the commission draws the conclusion that it is the duty of citizens of a higher type to serve on juries when summoned.

There is nothing new in this. When regular panels are called, the busy citizen understands that he may be detained from his regular work for a period of weeks. The remuneration offered does not in any appreciable part compensate him for the loss of time. Therefore it is his wont to evade service if he can. Finally the panel often is filled by the sort of material that if not thus engaged would be loafing about the courtroom. The evasion does not seem to weigh heavily on the citizen's conscience. He growls at the stupidity of juries as freely as though himself in no part responsible for it. But the lack of competent juries, chosen for specific cases of considerable importance, does not always rest upon the citizen. He may be barred by reason of high mental capacity and his honesty. Lawyers for the defense want a certain type of juror, and often ignorance is the best recommendation a talesman possibly could possess.

When a startling crime has been committed, and the details so far as known, have been made public; when many theories have been advanced, and suspicions against individuals freely discussed, it is natural that any person of decent intelligence should have formed some opinion. But as a person of the decent intelligence mentioned, this would not prevent him from considering the sworn evidence and being governed by it. But let him admit, as honestly he must, that he has even talked about the case, and he is told to go. If the talesman will say that he never heard of the case, he is likely to be accepted, although his statement either is false, or the sure sign of stupidity.

A jury should have brains and character, but how are these qualities to be smuggled past the lawyers?

IN THE NATURE OF WARNING

From the letter of a correspondent this excerpt is taken:

"Hearst is now deliberately and with malice, scattering the sparks of international hate, with the jubilant hope of producing another world conflagration."

This seems a serious charge to make against any man. Hearst daily supplies the evidence sustaining it. The desire to make trouble appears to be an obsession. For years he has sought to deceive the American public. So far as the intelligent public is concerned, he has failed utterly. He did not make it pro-German in the war, and he has not made it probolshevist since. He has been unable to impress upon it his apparent belief that England plans the downfall of the United States, or that all foreign diplomats are scurvy but astute knaves, and all statesmen of this country combine the qualities of fools and disloyal scoundrels.

There are vicious papers in England, too. One of them prints the assertion, ascribed to an Englishman, that in ten years England would have fought the United States, if it had gone on challenging her sea power, whereas, as Americans have undertaken to let Britania continue to rule the wave, all will be well.

To employ space for analysis of a falsehood so baseless would be waste. It is no wonder, however, that the Hearst papers seized upon it as affording a glorious opportunity to repeat their slanderous denunciation of the purpose and effect of the disarmament conference.

The quoted statement appeared after the letter of the correspondent had been printed. It fully upholds the allegations of the letter.

THE GENOA CONFERENCE

Political writers even of the standing of Rene Viviani do not profess to understand the purpose of the proposed Genoa conference. It is plain that they have no faith in its effectiveness. They withhold approval from the method of determining the composition of the gathering.

It is natural to concede that the conference does not hold out any alluring promise of accomplishment. While there is no indication that it would serve to knit the factions of Europe, that it might alienate the western continent, becomes a reasonable supposition. The United States has manifested no desire to participate. Latin America has been ignored completely in the sending out of invitations. Yet representatives of the soviets are to be present.

In announcing the conference there is no definite statement as to the object in view. Forty nations are scheduled to discuss subjects with which most of them are unfamiliar. Treaties that grew out of the recent victory are to be debated, although debate was closed with the signing of the agreements.

Viviani seems fearful that if the conference is held in Genoa, delegates will have the experience of being spectators at a civil war. Communists are preparing to convene in that city. He also criticizes adversely the policy of treating the bolshevists as though they were capable of good faith.

The conference lately held in this country was with intent to carry out a program which in a general way was known in advance to all delegates. The work was not undertaken blindly, nor was it carried on in the dark. It went steadily forward to success, but the conference was aware all the time whither it was bound, and why it started. In these respects it was wholly different from the affair now contemplated.

FROGS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Nature is full of queer spectacles. One of these queerest is the march of the frogs in spring.

During the winter the frogs lie buried deeply down out of sight in moist banks, or beneath the roots of trees, or under stones. They eat nothing for four or five months, yet when they wake up early in March, the females are ready to spawn.

Then both sexes make for the water. There are pools which have been trysting places for frogs for hundreds, or maybe thousands, of generations. From far and near the frogs, in early spring, move toward these spots by an unerring instinct.

Those who watch such a meeting place where frogs have collected to the number of thousands and swarm in the water have seen a most curious performance. The croaking, splashing, and gurgling of the creatures make a curious sound which can be heard some distance away.

Probably no other animal has been so much studied by scientists as the common frog, yet it is surprising how little we know about him. Taken from the water at the spawn stage, he develops into a tadpole by a series of metamorphoses which, seen under the microscope, appear positively uncanny.

He absorbs his tadpole tail (it does not drop off), and comes from the water a little frog not much bigger than a dime.

The frog is peculiar about his food. It must not only be alive, but it must be stirring, otherwise he will not touch it. He shoots his tongue out like a flash of lightning and retracts it with equal speed, taking his prey with it.

Frogs will get to know persons, and instances have been recorded in which they have answered their names and come for food when called.

Frogs show no mark of satisfaction when pleased, but express feelings of fright and terror in the most striking manner. They will squeal out at an almost human pitch and intensity.

One of the commonplaces of science is what a frog will do when his brain is removed. After such an operation, a frog will catch flies, and even proceed to bury himself in the earth when winter comes.

A frog with his head cut off will jump naturally and if he is tickled he will scratch at the place.

Dr. W. H. Thomson tells a story how, when he was fishing, a mud turtle swallowed the hook. He could not get the hook free, so he cut the turtle's head off with a knife. To his astonishment, the animal walked two yards away and dived into the water. He did not seem to need his head.

I am indebted for these notes to Benjamin Kidd's interesting book, "A Philosopher With Nature."

All over this land there are schoolboys and schoolgirls at blackboards.

Not all of the time, but at appropriate times of the school day.

* * *

They have wrinkled brows sometimes and puzzled brains and they streak the blackboard with crayon marks.

They make figures and decimal points and signs for addition and subtraction and multiplication and division.

* * *

It is not always easy work for them.

And not pleasant when birds are singing without and there is the call of the field and the open places.

But it is necessary work.

Not too much of it.

Not enough to wear them out and worry them into despair.

* * *

But enough of it to exercise their mentalities.

For the mind needs exercise as the body does.

It needs to be trained to do certain things.

To reach out and take hold of problems.

And seek to solve them.

* * *

So we have the matter of problems early in life.

Problems in mathematics.

Which are the first ones we become familiar with.

And while we may have worried sometimes.

And rebelled sometimes.

And wished often we might be off fishing or nutting or playing games.

Yet we realize the wisdom of the problems.

In our mental development.

* * *

Then as we grow along in life we find that there are problems all along the way.

The problem of articulation with the world of endeavor that we may render useful service.

And receive a reasonable reward.

The great problem of food and drink.

Which is always before most of us.

There are those who have no problem of food and drink and shelter and raiment.

And in one way we hold them fortunate.

But in a closer analysis we are likely to change the opinion.

For they miss the exercise and mental stimulus and human development that come from struggle.

* * *

And today there are clubs meeting all over the world.

Clubs of men and women.

Interested in the solution of problems.

Problems of politics and sociology and economics and industry.

* * *

The manufacturer at his desk.

The professor at his class.

The housewife in her kitchen or at her accounts.

The statesman in his cabinet.

The various elements of industrial and social life.

All busy with problems.

* * *

So problems are necessary things in life.

To keep people busy thinking out ways to solve them.

The problem of the rearing of children.

What parent would be without them?

* * *

Statesmen from the great nations recently adjourned a disarmament conference at Washington.

They had been busy with problems.

The greatest in the world.

Peace for the human race.

The lessening as far as possible of the chances of war.

* * *

Thus it goes.

Except for infancy and senility.

These have no problems.

All alive and useful mentality has them.

And is grateful for them. And the chance to solve them perhaps.

SONGS OF THE POETS

At the Last—By Philip Bourke Marston (1850-1887)

Because the shadows deepened verily—
Because the end of all seemed near, forsooth—
Her gracious spirit, ever quick to ruth,
Had pity on her bond-slave, even on me.
She came in with the twilight noiselessly,
Fair as a rose, immaculate as Truth;
She leaned above my wrecked and wasted youth;
I felt her presence, which I could not see.
"God keep you, my poor friend," I heard her say,
And then she kissed my dry, hot lips and eyes.
Kiss thou the next kiss, quiet Death, I pray;
Be instant on this hour, and so surprise
My spirit while the vision seems to stay;
Take thou the heart with the heart's Paradise.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

A SERIOUS MATTER

[Waterbury American]

In proposing Mr. Hearst for governor or United States senator, Mayor Hylan said hesitatingly that he did not know whether Mr. Hearst would accept public office. He'd better make sure. It would be too bad to offer Mr. Hearst an office and have him accept it.

TROTZKY'S DAMNATION

[Chicago Journal of Commerce]

A picture of Jewish discipline in its severest form comes over the cables from the land of trouble whose present rulers have cursed God and seek to perpetuate an infernal system of oppression, immorality, injustice and galling tyranny. It is the story of the expulsion of Leon Trotzky, the Russian war minister, from the Jewish church and congregation. His own father preferred the charge, which was as follows: "Leon has foresworn his forefathers' creed, has proved to be an enemy to Judaism, and has become a curse to humanity."

Asked for proof by the rabbi, the stern father responded that every member of the community and every Russian throughout the world stood as witnesses to the accepted fact as charged, and added:

"I want him damned, cursed with the curse of damnation which since the beginning of the world has been spoken only against the enemies of God, the curse from which there is no redemption on earth, in heaven or hell."

Thereupon the chief rabbi read seven prayers, seven curses and blew out seven candles, damning the accused for all eternity, and Trotzky's venerable mother, who was present, uttered a piercing cry of woe, fainted and fell to the floor.

This incident brings to us the knowledge that church discipline, so weak and ineffective in many quarters, may be effectively invoked where the world is raw and human emotions have been stirred to their utmost. The world at large regardless of differences in religious belief, has not given expression to its judgment of the crimes of Trotzky in so impressive a manner as the little church in Ekaterinoslav, led by the plea of an outraged father.

"SMOKE"

[Springfield Union]

"Smoke" is the name bestowed on the atrocious concoctions which masquerade as liquor in the low drinking resorts in and around New York city by the derelicts that go to the Bowery Y. M. C. A. for treatment, probably because this vile brand of "firewater," if it does not actually smoke, gives the consumer the sensation of being a human volcano in action. The secretary of the Bowery "Y" contrasts the condition and conduct of inebriates under prohibition with that of drink victims in the pre-prohibition days, when they were amenable to discipline and yielded readily to treatment. The "smoke" drinkers almost go crazy, he reports, and the ordinary methods of dealing with men affected by bad liquor are ineffective. As an experiment, and in hope of finding an effective remedy, a dozen men have been selected from the thousands treated at the Bowery branch to take the cure at the Christian Home for Inebriates in Mt. Vernon.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

Politics, coffee and doughnuts are being judicially mixed by the canny woman mayor of a western town. "This town needs much constructive legislation," she told her town council at the first meeting. "The only way to get it is to get you to come to the town council meetings and for me to keep you in a happy frame of mind while I've got you here. I know from experience that you can win a man through his stomach, and I think that this will work with you. See if it does not!"

Spoken with the direct philosophy of a woman who understands not the devious ways of modern politicians' minds and goes straight to the point with uncommon sense. Why should not the womanly mixture of doughnuts and politics accomplish as much as the masculine mixture of dollars and politics? It's much cheaper, anyway, even taking into account the present price of eggs and lard. Dollars to doughnuts it will!

Men, however, have a right to challenge that suggestion that only men are reached through stomachic satisfaction. How about candy and courtship? Is there not some connection between the two aside from the initial letters? It may be that through the sweet tooth—and ultimately the stomach—the heart of woman is won. It's about time that we of the equal rights stopped our selfish accusations of masculinity. Isn't it? The stomach and its satisfaction plays quite a part with both sexes. Why not accept the truth?

This may well open up new possibilities in the political field. It has already been suggested that women will favor the candidate with the largest and best candy boxes. It may yet be that a woman candidate's slogan will be:

"Eat my doughnuts and vote for the maker!"

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

There are prospects that California will have three more congressmen.

Thinking this over carefully, the average citizen of the state will decline to get much excited. California would not need three more congressmen, except that it is just that this great commonwealth have its due proportion of representation. Exception will be taken to this view by the several gentlemen desirous of serving this country for salary, mileage and a chance to contribute to the Congressional Record.

HENRY JAMES

The government is strong for economy. Economy is the theme of statesmen. The administration begs the country to practise it. Largely for the sake of economy budgets are being carved ruthlessly. The navy has been cut so that Annapolis graduates are threatened with being turned loose uncommissioned. The army is reduced to a skeleton, and a tendency is manifest to squeeze the marrow out of its bones.

And it is just at this time, the house, already big and unwieldy plans to become bigger and more unwieldy.

A congressman gets $7500 and an extravagant mileage. He has a secretary, paid out of the public funds. He increases the printing bill by the publication of useless words. He cumbers the mail with franked junk that nobody wants.

An increase in the congressional personnel does not appeal as a necessity, and in so far as it would be a luxury, the public would have no share, the new members absorbing it all.

A petty suit is holding back the sale of harbor bonds and bonds for a library building in Los Angeles.

There is no belief that the suit has been brought in good faith, it being petty in more than a legal sense.

It is said that a swindler operating in Washington numbers President Harding among his victims, working the executive for recognition as a person of some official importance.

There are many persons who try to deceive the President. They are not professional swindlers. They would resent hotly being so classed. They are politicians. Occasionally, doubtless, they succeed in putting something across.

There is something impressively deliberate about a government sometimes. It seldom acts hastily concerning the payment of a debt.

Twenty-three years ago President McKinley suggested that certain soldiers were entitled to congressional medals for service in the Philippines. Seven years later the medals were authorized.

This week the soldiers received the medals.

Arthur Brishane's tender heart seems to have been seriously torn by sympathy for a Chicago murderer. Apparently the editor derived much pleasure from exhibiting the lacerated organ.

The murderer in question had made a pretense of purchasing a costly automobile. When the machine was delivered by two men, he lured them into the basement singly, killed each by blows from a baseball bat, buried one on the spot and drove away with the body of the other. This he dumped into the river. Then he used the machine to take a joyride, his own mother being a guest.

Anybody with sympathy to waste on such a creature is failing to temper his pity with common sense.

There are many very old people in this community. The senior of the aggregation, with one exception, probably was the late Dr. Peebles. He lacked but 36 days of having reached the century mark, and it had been his ambition to round out a century.

Dr. Peebles, as is common with persons of great age, had theories as to how to acquire long life. The puzzling feature is that while there are numerous theories, seldom do two agree. Often the centenarian is found to have lived in defiance of all the rules laid down.

The late Dr. Walter Lindley, a man of great culture, wrote a book telling how to live a hundred years. He followed a well-ordered routine but he passed away at seventy.

Apparently the only sure basis for a century of mundane experience is the possession of a sound constitution.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

This morning it rained. Gee whiz, how it rained! The water fell in cascades. The paved streets leaped and fountained. But that sort of thing—this particular morning—had no effect on your Uncle Henry. I was as full of glee as a two-year-old colt turned out to early spring pasture. If I could have kicked up my heels I would have done so.

"Great morning," I said to Zeke. That is as near as I can get to his Greek name. He keeps the combination watermelon, cream, cigar, cracker and broom store down the street. You know the sort of a store I mean. No one would ever go in there to buy anything except when forced in by an emergency. Zeke has a stock of about two things of a sort but of every sort. He makes a fair profit out of our intermittent necessities.

"Wonderful day," I said, and I grinned. Not that I thought I had said anything funny, but I was full of grins. A lot of prankish stuff came to me, but I reserved it for use on a more appreciative audience. I didn't think that Zeke would play up to me very well. But I was mistaken.

"Dass-a right," said Zeke, grinning back. "Always good-a morning when you feel that way."

Come to think about it that's about true. Other mornings—other nice, sunshiny, brisk, bracing, wholly delightful mornings—I have purchased my after-breakfast cigar of Zeke with a growl. I had reduced Mrs. Pilgrim to tears, caused the maid to give notice, kicked the cat, got into a quarrel with the man at the garage that I did not dare carry through, sneered at the girl at the mail desk, fussed with every one in sight. The morning was all right. It was I who was all wrong.

Zeke said that people who came in to buy of him were ver' fonny. All of them, he said, spoke of the weather. That is the invariable conversational opening. Some, he said, are always happy and good-natured, whatever may be the climatic condition without. Others always had a grouch.

"Notting," said Zeke, philosophically, "makes no deeference what is wit'out. Happiness, eet ees something that comes from weethin."

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

THUNDER STORMS ARE BENEFICIAL SAYS SCIFNTIST

Break Up Droughts, Replenish Streams and Brooks

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 20.—The much mooted question as to whether lightening rods are efficient in warding off destruction from lightning bolts has been answered by Professor R. deC. Ward of Harvard University in the affirmative as a result of much study.

Professor Ward says that there is much needless fear of lightning, explaining that many bolts of the celestial electricity are harmless and only strong enough to flash from one cloud to another.

"A recent investigation into the value of lightning rods in protecting buildings in the United States [illegible] the conclusion that the efficiency of the lightning rods in preventing lightning strokes is about 90 per cent," Professor Ward stated.

"Hundreds of fires in houses and other buildings are started every year by lightning. Nearly all of these fires, and a considerable loss of human life, could certainly be prevented if modern methods of lightning protection were generally employed.

"Thunder storms bring us much that is of benefit. To them we owe much, in parts of the country—even most of our spring and summer rainfall. Without thunder storms, our great staple crops east of the Rocky mountains would never reach maturity. One good thunder storm over a considerable area at a critical crop stage is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to American farmers.

"Our stock markets time and again show the favorable reaction of such conditions upon the prices of cereals and also of railroad and other stocks. Thunder storms break summer droughts; cleanse the dusty air; refresh the parched earth; replenish failing streams and brooks and bring cool evenings and nights after sultry and oppressive days.

"It is of considerable human and economic importance that the larger thunder storms are not everywhere equally severe. They are not a well-united whole, but rather a series of storms loosely connected moving as a body.

"There is much needless fear of lightning. Most thunder storms are harmless. Many lightning flashes are too weak to cause death. Large numbers of flashes are from cloud to cloud and do not affect our safety. Between 700 and 800 persons are struck by lightning and killed each year in the United States, on the average, and probably fully twice as many are injured.

"There are certain facts in our relation to lightning which are well-established: Isolated houses and farm buildings in the country are more liable to be struck than city buildings. Our modern city skyscrapers, with their steel frame construction are in themselves excellent lightning conductors. In general, the nearer we are to the seat of electrical activity the greater the danger. The risk of being struck by lightning is, therefore, greater on mountains up to a certain height than in valleys and on lowlands."

"The baby is so much like his father,"- Mrs. Deare commented apropos of nothing, of course.

THE PEARSONS GET BIRTHDAY REMEMBRANCE

Isaac Pearson of 644 East Harvard street had a birthday on February 8th, it being his 83rd one. Both he and his wife had almost forgotten about it Saturday when a parcel post package and a letter were delivered to their home. In the package was a truly wonderful cake, four layers, and beautifully iced, with the legend "1839-1922" on top in red candles; and there was something else, too, a beautifully framed picture of an aged couple, he with his arm around her shoulders and looking up at a picture of her taken when she was a young bride. The title was "My Valentine." The aroma of that lovely cake diffused itself among the neighbors, who came in to find out the why of it all. A few of them dropped in that evening to sample the cake, served with ice cream, and also to wish Mr. Pearson many happy returns. The cake and picture were from Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Campbell, of Galveston, Tex., cousins of Mr. Pearson.

MRS. MONTGOMERY ENTERTAINS PARTY

TRI MU PREPARES FOR ENTERTAINMENT

Elaborate preparations are being made by the members of the Tri Mu class of the Glendale Baptist Sunday school for the dinner and entertainment it will give in the church next Friday evening. The program will include musical and literary numbers by local and outside talent, and promises to be one of the finest given in that church for months. Each member of the class is expected to be present and bring a "lady friend."

FOSTER BRIDGE CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

Members of the Foster Bridge club were entertained at a four-course luncheon and an afternoon of cards Friday, by Mrs. S. B. Morse of South Everett street. Red roses furnished the floral note of color on the prettily appointed table, on which places were laid for eight, viz., Mesdames E. W. W. Hayward, A. H. Lapham, C. E. Norton, Helen Campbell, and the hostess, regular members, and two guests, Mrs. F. Snyder of Chicago and Miss Elma Miess of this city.

The club prize, a black satin card table cover, was won by Mrs. Lapham, the guest prize, which was a violet corsage bouquet, going to Miss Meiss.

MARK BIRTHDAY OF FRANCES E. WILLARD

There was an excellent attendance of members of the W. C. T. U. at the meeting held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. David Francy on North Kenwood street, to observe "Frances E. Willard day."

The chief speaker of the afternoon was Miss Emma Mead of South Dakota, who reviewed in a most interesting manner Miss Willard's work as educator, lecturer, authoress and temperance campaigner.

Several fine piano numbers were contributed by Mrs. Schwerser of Chicago, daughter of the president of the local union, Mrs. Ruby Smart. Tea and home-made cake were served during the social half-hour which followed the program.

MISS FARROW HAS BIRTHDAY

In celebration of her birthday, Miss Alice Farrow was surprised with a dinner party Saturday evening at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. P. G. Farrow, by a group of girl chums who brought the dinner with them. The girls were: Elaine Buttrud, Mildred Thompson, Dorothy Watson, Selma Carver and Eloine Truitt. In the evening they were joined by a group of young gentlemen and enjoyed music and dancing.

PRICE OF FREEDOM

Irish lawyers tell this story of Lord Morris, once lord chief justice of Ireland and before that recorder of Galway.

The last case on the list on one occasion, a dispute over a few shillings, was argued before Morris at great length and with much warmth. Lord Morris was anxious to get back to Dublin, where the courts were in full swing and where he held important briefs. Moreover, the Dublin train was scheduled to start within a few minutes. The recorder looked at his watch, but the wrangle did not seem to be approaching an end. At last he said to the opposing solicitors:

"Pardon me, gentlemen, but I must catch a train. Here is the sum in dispute."

And throwing down the silver, he vanished from the court.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Suphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.—Adv.

BARBARA'S

I WAS DEEPLY INTERESTED in Mr. Ingledue's story of his selection of meat for the GLENDALE MARKET, at 632-4 East Broadway. Mr. Ingledue is known in the packing houses as a "regular crank" on meat—for he absolutely will not buy any but A-1 goods! To be sure, he might save as much as 8c the pound by buying bruised or otherwise inferior carcasses—but the distributors, as well as all Glendale Market customers, know that when the little stamp reading "Glendale Market" has been placed on a piece of meat—it is the best to be had! Why, sometimes, as many as 100 are inspected before two or three are selected! Yet, and despite this careful consideration, Mr. Ingledue has kept his overhead expense so low—that he is able to sell this best quality meat to you at prices that are almost as low as the inferior qualities! They deliver also!

RICE CAKES

Two eggs well beaten, a pinch of salt and a cup of sweet milk. Add 1 cup well cooked rice. Use flour enough to make a batter and 2 level teaspoons baking powder. Mix well and bake in small cakes on a greased griddle.

--*

I THOUGHT I'D BUY a loaf of the cracked wheat bread which I saw at the GATEWAY MARKET BAKERY, corner of San Fernando and Brand, the other day—and it was perfectly delicious! You know the beauty of it is that this cracked wheat bread is so much more healthful than the white—and I do believe that it has a more tempting flavor! Some morning, start early for the Gateway Market—and ask at the Bakery department to be shown the big ovens and mixers which they use. You'll enjoy going through their kitchen for it is every bit as spic and span as one's own home!

--*

PARKER HOUSE ROLLS

Make dough as for standard biscuit. Roll to 1-3 inch in thickness. Cut with a round or oval cutter and crease in center with the handle of a caseknife, first dipped in flour. Brush half of the round with melted butter and fold over. put in a pan 1-2 inch apart and bake in a quick oven 15 minutes.

LAST NIGHT I DROPPED in at the SANITARY HOME BAKERY—1102 East Broadway (they're open on Sunday, you know)—and bought a dozen fresh cinnamon rolls. And really, my dear, they positively melted in our months—so fresh and good were they! They're known all over town for the wondreful cinnamon rolls, home-made doughnuts and fresh rolls—baked every day! I know for a fact that all the ingredients used at the Sanitary Bakery are of the very purest. Why, they even use the best ranch eggs in their cooking!

COME, LET US QUICKLY UNPACK BARBARA'S BASKET, Mrs. Glendale—and see what are the goodies she's brought for her adopted family—you and Mr. Glendale and all the little Glendales, this week! To be sure, she'll have a bounteous supply of dainties from all the bakeries, groceries and meat and fruit markets in town—tempting morsels that will satisfy the most pampered appetite! For, do you know, Barbara truly loves to shop—journeying around from this store to that—always in quest of economical as well as appetizing suggestions for our table! And, of this you may rest assured—wherever Barbara does her buying—there you will find fair prices—best quality and excellent service! Bear it in mind!

I'M SURE I DON'T KNOW what I'd do if it weren't for the PURITY BAKERY—718 East Broadway! You know they remain open all day Sundays, offering a full, fresh assortment of home-made bread, rolls, cakes and pastry! And so often unexpected guests drop in for Sunday supper—I'd be at a loss to provide refreshments if I couldn't just send the children to the Purity Bakery for hot rolls—some cream for coffee and a delicious cake! Remember them!

--*

TAPIOCA PUDDING

Soak 4 tablespoons tapioca in a little water; boil 1 quart milk and pour over it, while hot; when cool add 1-2 cup of sugar, 1 egg and yolks of 2 eggs (well beaten), bake; when done beat the 2 whites with 2 tablespoons sugar and spread on top.

--*

SOMEHOW IT ALWAYS SEEMS TO ME that breakfast is the most important meal of the day—for if you start with a feeling of satisfaction and contentment in the morning—you've started right—and the day is sure to be a success! I know you'll be delighted with a delicious breakfast for which the wonderful bacon I saw at the GATEWAY MEAT MARKET—San Fernando and Brand, is served! This is the best Eastern Bacon—but Mr. Caswell is selling it at only 30c the lb.! And, another morning, try some of Caswell's Sausage—they make it themselves! Call Glendale 2361-W for delivery service!

UNTIL YOU'VE TRIED IT—you can have no idea how convenient is the habit of just calling Glendale 2361-W—THE GATEWAY MARKET GROCERY, at San Fernando and Brand, each morning—and placing your grocery order! All orders are attended to promptly—and their delivery service is excellent! The Gateway Market Grocery carry a full line and complete stock of groceries of the very first quality—including fresh ranch eggs, butter, milk and relishes! There isn't anything you might want or need in the grocery line that they can't send you. Oh! yes, and they're also agents for that delicious Blossom Bee Honey!

DIDN'T YOU ENJOY that delicious roast of pork I served for dinner yesterday? I bought it at the EAST BROADWAY MEAT MARKET—1100 East Broadway—(you know, on the corner of Adams). The meats which they carry are absolutely A-1—always fresh and pure—and at prices that are always interesting to the careful buyer! And, now, you know, you may also buy all your fresh vegetables and fruits at the East Broadway market—for they've just established a department for this line. And, speaking of dainties—just try some of the wonderful cheese which they sell! It is perfectly delicious!

--*

CREAM FILLING FOR CAKE

One cup sugar, 1-3 cup flour, 2 eggs well beaten, 2 1-2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix the sugar, flour and eggs, and stir into the hot milk. Cook in the top of a double boiler ten minutes. Add the vanilla.

--*

I THINK QUITE THE MOST IMPORTANT PART of a meal is the meat! That, of all foods, must be absolutely fresh and pure, of the finest quality to be bought! That is why I recommend all who live in that neighborhood to trade at the RELIABLE MEAT MARKET—1502 South San Fernando road—for there you may be assured of the best—at prices that are fair! Mr. Danner will not accept any but the first class meats—and thus he's built a reputation for quality, quantity and service! And on Fridays they sell all fresh fish in season, too!

--*

I HEARD THE OTHER DAY of "the bread that made mother stop baking"—and today I found the pies that I'm sure were responsible for the sudden cessation of activity in the pastry line! 'Twas at the VIRGINIA BAKE SHOP, 634 East Broadway, that I bought that wonderful old-fashioned pumpkin pie—flavored and spiced "just right"! And, too, they're famous for the delicious cocoanut cream pies, that are brought forth from their huge ovens every morning! There's no use in bothering about baking any more—just stop in at the Virginia Bake Shop and buy what you need!

THE SMILE O F A WHALE

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"If you've never seen a whale—Dr. Muskrat paused as if rather embarrassed. "If you've never seen one, I'm afraid you won't understand what happened next. You must remember that my ancestors who sailed through the Big Flood in their little thorn-tree weren't nearly as big as I am. And they felt littler than usual because they hadn't had anything to eat for so long—you know how small that makes you feel. They felt just one size bigger than nothing at all.

"Can you imagine how they would feel when Fluke Slasher floated up alongside of them? Imagine a big, steep, shiny black cliff towering high above them — that was his head. Then imagine how it would be if an eye, set like a gopher hole up near the top of it, took to blinking. For that whale did blink!

"But they didn't! Their eyes popped out with fright! Their paws let go from sheer terror—if their tailgrips hadn't been so used to holding on to the crumpled branches of their thorn tree they'd have fallen splash into the water and drowned right there and then. So there they hung, pawing the air with all fours. It was most undignified!"

Dr. Muskrat paused again and cleared his throat. The truth must be told at any price. Yet, he plainly didn't relish the telling. Not where his own family was concerned. "That was terrible," he sighed. "But worse was to come. That awful eye had squinted down to where the whale could see them—he being so far-sighted he had great trouble making out anything so small and so close as a flapper. He lifted his nose till the cliff seemed to stand on end, opened his vast mouth, and—"

"He didn't swallow them, too, did he?" barked the red dog. "I've heard tell he swallowed a man once—that whale of one of his grandsons. Jonah was the name of him. One of my litter-brothers was named for him because he was so unlucky. He—"

He Was Just Laughing.

"No, he didn't swallow them, for that would have been the end of muskrats—"

"No, indeed," persisted the dog. "He caught Jonah afloat in the midst of a raging storm and took him safe to land."

"Did he so?" exclaimed the old paddle-paw, quite ear-pricked at such astounding news. "Did he so? Well, old Fluke-Slasher was too late for that, seeing as how the storm was over, and too early, at the same time, seeing as how there wasn't any land. He was just laughing."

NEXT STORY: OLD FLUKE-SLASHER ASKS QUESTIONS.

Nothing saddens an older person like seeing two young people married who, he thinks, are bound to make a failure, and few things irritate him so much as to find out later that they haven't.

It is interesting to know that there are 13,703,987 alien-born persons resident in the United States, but what Americans want to know is how many hyphens are included in the lot.

LAST SHOWING OF LAW AND WOMEN

Betty Compson, the beautiful and talented young Paramount was received with genuine enthusiasm in her new picture, "The Law and the Woman," on its presentation at the T. D. & L. theatre yesterday. "The Law and the Woman" will be shown for the last times today.

"The Saturday Night Review," a company of saxophone players, captivated the T. D. & L. theatre patrons last night with their popular jazz musical selections. Ralph Allan has decided to hold them over for an additional three days, with a complete change of music for the evening performances, during the showing of the Cecil B. DeMille production, "Saturday Night," which will then be the attraction at the popular playhouse—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

ADVOCATE WARM AIR HEATING

"Although air, food and water are equally essential to good health, most people underestimate the value of air and water, but overestimate the importance of food," said a local educator to a class in hygiene Friday. "We could all get along on less food than we eat, but most of us would be considerably better off if we drank more water and gave more attention to proper ventilation.

"Especially in the winter months when we spend some time indoors, our bodies often suffer for want of sufficient air to thoroughly purify the blood. In California people are inclined to neglect the heating and ventilating arrangements in their homes, so that when cold weather comes they are forced to close their doors and windows tightly and they often heat the same air over and over again."

The small, inexpensive warm air furnace is taking the place of unhealthful makeshift heating devices, according to this teacher, who says the gas bill for this type of furnace is often less than for stoves.

SO. CAL. GAS CO. HAS NEW HEATER

The Southern California Gas company has obtained the exclusive agency in Glendale and the whole San Fernando valley of the Cabco gas steam radiators, which it declares are the most efficient low-cost heaters now on the market. Briefly described, they are steam heat units which are separate and independent and which are capable of being enlarged and expanded to serve in rooms of any size.

The claim is made that one filling with water will be sufficient to last a year and when the radiator is once hot a very small amount of gas is needed to maintain it at that temperature, which means economy in the consumption of fuel.

Also, they are ready for installation anywhere, as soon as a gas connection is made.

The construction is such that perfect combustion is secured, say the manufacturers, and therefore there is no soot, there are no fumes, and no vents are needed Being an independent unit, the expense and trouble of the basement boiler is eliminated.

Each unit is equipped with a Bunsen burner of special type and also a valve which automatically regulates the flow of gas.

A full line of these heaters is being shown at the Glendale office of the gas company on West Broadway, where those interested will have an opportunity to inspect them. They are said to be among the popular systems of heating schools, churches, theaters, etc., and the gas company will probably present bids for the new school buildings which are to be constructed.

ZEKE'S TRANSLATION

Lord Babbington was instructing a new servant in his duties, adding, "Now, Zeke, when I ring for you, you must answer me by saying, 'My lord, what will you have?'"

A few hours afterward, having occasion to summon the servant, his lordship was astonished with the following:

"My Gawd, what does you want now?"

NORTH BRAND BUSINESS PROPERTY AT ONE-FOURTH VALUE, AS COMPARED TO SIMILAR PROPERTY IN OTHER LOCATIONS

Glendale is "V" shape, expanding to the north. The best residential district is north of Colorado, therefore, the business district will move northward. Glendale is building towards the mountains, like Hollywood.

We believe the "wise" investor, who buys North Brand NOW at the low price of $150 to $300 per front foot, will more than double his money in the next two years, as similar properties in Hollywood and other successful locations, have recently sold for more than four times the price quoted above.

We are exclusive agents for 25 (1250 feet) North Brand business lots, including some very desirable corners.

At a dinner party an elderly lady of very prim and severe aspect was seated next to a young couple who were discussing the merits of their motor cars.

"What color is your body?" the young man asked the girl.

"Oh, mine is pink. What is yours?"

"Mine," replied the young man, "is brown with wide yellow stripes."

This was too much for the old lady. Rising from the table she exclaimed to her hostess: "I really must be excused. When young people ask each other the color of their bodies at a dinner party it is time I left the room."

An Englishman met a friend and said: "I say, old chap, I've go an awfully good idea, don't you know. I'm going to have a mus ical box put in my bathroom so that when I'm having my bath I can listen to a bit of music."

His friend did not seem to think much of the idea, and when he met the genius a few weeks later he asked him how he got on with the idea of the musical box in the bathroom.

"Oh," said his friend, "to tell the truth, it wasn't much of a success. The beastly thing would only play 'God Save the King,' and so I had to stand up all the time."

Eagle Rock

NEW BUILDING FOR EAGLE ROCK

A crowd of spectators was attracted to the large vacant lot on the north side of Colorado boulevard, just east of the Mueller grocery store, on Friday. A big steam shovel was scooping out dirt from the bank next the sidewalk and dumping it into auto trucks, of which six were in service. Inquiry revealed the fact that W. J. MacDonald of Pasadena has purchased 100 feet of the frontage and is preparing to cover the entire space with stores, which he will build to suit renters. Although stores and offices are multiplying at a rapid rate in Eagle Rock, they are still sought for lease long before they are completed. As this location is in the center of business, it is not likely that the stores will long remain empty.

Another store is to be built at the east- end, next the stucco block which contains the branch bakery and the Stice Bros. plumbing shop. A Los Angeles man, Mr. Dort, has bought the lot and will establish his tailoring and men's furnishing store in the building to be erected.

One of those happy social functions especially dear to the hearts of women, know as a stork party, took place last Wednesday afternoon at home of Mrs. W. F. Hansen, 816 Rock Glen avenue, and was also a valentine celebration. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, hearts and cupids. From a chandelier was suspended a Japanese umbrella which held dainty gifts for the honoree of the party, Mrs. John A. Davis, a neighbor of the hostess. Many of the guests live in that part of Eagle Rock near the Glendale line, others were club friends, Mrs. Davis being second vice-president of the Twentieth Century club.

Mrs. M. L. Marshall gave one of her fine character readings, Mrs. E. C. Jones sang several songs, and Mrs. T. H. Ludlow played a selection on the piano. Fruit salad, cookies, and chocolate were served.

The ladies present, besides the hostess and honoree, were Mmes. F. E. Prindle, Marshall Prindle, Rufus D. Morris, E. M. Isaac, R. Hanners, Edith Richardson, Eva Lee, Mabel Dierhol, F. Bannisher, E. INVESTIGATION OF LOCAL GAS INSTITUTED

Railroad Commission Begins Probe in Southern California

The railroad commission, in order to assure adequate service, today instituted on its own motion an investigation into the gas situation in Southern California. The order of the commission is directed to the Los Angeles Gas & Electric corporation, the Southern California Gas company and the Southern Counties Gas company, and relates to the reasonableness and adequacy of service and of facilities for service. A public hearing is set for March 15 at 10 a.m. before Commissioners Loveland and Benedict in the courtroom of the commission, 806 Pacific Finance building, Los Angeles.

This order follows an investigation of several months conducted by an engineer of the gas division, and is sweeping in scope, covering every phase of the gas business.

In the language of the order, the purpose of the investigation is to determine "whether the practices, equipment, appliances or facilities for the manufacture, distribution, transmission, storage or supply of gas for domestic, commercial and industrial purposes are unjust, unreasonable, improper, inadequate or insufficient in any particular; and to determine whether any additions, extensions, repairs or improvements to, or changes in the existing plants, equipment, apparatus, facilities or other physical property of said utilities or any of them, ought reasonably to be made or whether any new structure or structures should be erected to in any way secure adequate service or facilities."

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

LOST FAITH

I was speaking I remember of the goodness o all men,
I was eloquent and earnest and sincere;
I told how they had proved their goodness tim and time again,
And the audience seemed glad my speech t hear.
I remember how I told them that all men wer square and fair,
I discussed the whole grave matter pro an con,
Then I looked for my umbrella, that I had lef hanging there,
In the cloak room and by gracious, it wa gone.

Yes, how well do I recall it! With my eloquence of speech
I said no man was ever lost or bad;
No man but human kindliness and friendliness would reach;
And my audience seemed lifted up and glad.
No man I said but in a pinch would justify a trust,
And so I spoke and rambled on and on.
But the faith of me quite crumbled into ashes and to dust
When I looked and found that silk umbrella gone.

And I called all men my brothers and I said that they were true,
That no man would do me evil I was sure.
And the great applause that greeted me and cheered when I was through Convinced me that the heart of men was pure.
And so, thrilling with my message and the glory of mankind,
The shock of it was rude that time and place,
And I wish the man who took it would return it lest I find
I have lost my faith in all the human race.

NOT A LIE

Harry Leon Wilson, the humorist, was praising California. "California is so wonderful," he said, "that if you praise it unreservedly strangers will think you are lying. Like little Mike, you know. Little Mike was telling his little Eastern friend about his California visit and about Santa Catalina, with its wonderful glass - bottomed boats wherein you float over rose-colored coral reefs and watch the gorgeous fish swimming in the crystal water thirty or forty feet below. 'Yep,' Mike concluded, 'we could see the fish just as plain, laying on the bottom of the ocean.' 'Lying, dear,' corrected one of the ladies present. 'I ain't neither,' said little Mike, 'it's the Gospel truth.'"

She had just received a proposal of marriage.

"Mary," said the young man, "you know that I have always turned to you; that I have always thought of you. May I—that is—oh, will you be my wife?"

"What a start you gave me, George," said Mary at last. "Do you know, I thought from your manner that you were going to ask me to lend you some money."

All that Joseph's coat of many colors ever got him was trouble.

WOODLANDS NOW ORGANIZED FOR IMPROVEMENT

John L. Bolen Elected President and Mrs. Butler, Secy.

The mass meeting, the purpose of which was to organize the Verdugo Woodlands Improvement association, was held Saturday night in the Estes grocery store on La Canada boulevard. There were about 125 interested residents of that section present and the session proved to be a rousing one. There was a spirit of enthusiasm manifest which promises that when this organization is successfully under way it will be a power for the improvement and general advancement of that charming section.

Those present selected John L. Bolen as president, and Mrs. J. R. Butler as secretary and treasurer. After taking the chair Mr. Bolen stated that the purpose of the organization is to secure a number of badly needed improvements adn conveniences for the Verdugo Woodlands section, efficient street lighting, proper and extensive street improvements, a satisfactory amount of police protection, etc. He said there are some things, in addition to those mentioned that should be enjoyed by the residents of a section that is so extremely attractive and high class as Verdugo Woodlands. The improvement association will not endeavor to get anything that the section is not entitled to, but it will endeavor to get the modern conveniences which that locality should be enjoying.

Secretary Rhoades and Assistant Secretary Sanders of the Glendale chamber of commerce were present and assured the people of that section that the chamber is behind them, in their struggle for the bettermen of their section.

Mr. Rhoades said in part:

"The chamber of commerce is glad to get behind the residents in any section of the city who are live enough to start things for themselves. From the way you people have gathered and the enthusiasm that is being shown I see that you are starting the things that you need and are entitled to. The Verdugo Woodlands is one of the most beautiful sections in the entire San Fernando valley. It has the natural attractive features and there is no reson why it should not be further enhanced by the addition of our most modern manmade improvements.

"Whatever you may undertake along the improvement line will receive the smile of approval and hearty support of the association that Mr. Sanders and I represent. If there is anything we can do or say or if there is any worthy movement that we can support that would be of benefit to your locality, we would certainly be pleased as an organization to assist you."

In his capable manner Assistant Secretary Sanders told the folks that so far as the assistant secretary and his good will and influence are concerned they are with the people of the Verdugo Woodlands section in their fight for better things. The enterprise of the people from this locality is manifest, said Mr. Sanders, by the fact that a number of people from that locality have been members of the chamber of commerce for some time and by a number of additional people joining the chamber at Saturday night's meeting.

When the meeting adjourned it was with the intention of gathering again at the same place next Saturday night.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your kidneys occasionally if you eat meat regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

STEAL MOTOR FROM THEATRE CURBING

Jensen Suspects Beggar Who Asked for Food Is Responsible

Robert S. Jensen of 227 North Kenwood street reports that his automobile was stolen from in front of the T. D. & L. theatre at 9:30 o'clock last night. He says that early in the day a man called at his home and asked for something to eat. At that time the man took "stock" of Mr. Jensen's garage and its contents. It is Jensen's belief that this man waited for him to park his car in front of the theatre last night. He thinks that this fellow has been watching him and that this was his first opportunity to make away with the car. The police are doing everything they can to locate the missing machine.

CHANGED HIS MIND

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20.—Filipo Muculoso, lifer, decided to die. He jumped from the third story of the penitentiary. On the way down he changed his mind and grabbed the bars of the second tier of his cell. Slightly injured.

No month of the year in Cuba is free from rain.
